Performance Fees for High Dividend Fund
Based on the September 2025 fee structure, the High Dividend Fund does have performance fees for certain share classes .
Fee Structure Details:
Share Classes WITH Performance Fees:
- Class A2 MDIs: 15% of profit (High-on-high principle)
- Class A Acc: Performance fee listed as "Nil"
Share Classes WITHOUT Performance Fees:
- Class A Acc: Nil
Share Classes with Unspecified Information:
- Class A1: Performance fee information not specified in the table
- Class B: Performance fee information not specified in the table
The performance fee for applicable classes is calculated as 15% of profit using the high-on-high principle , which means fees are only charged when the fund's value exceeds its previous highest value.

Report Month: 2025-09-01
Fund Type: High Dividend Fund
Section: Fee structure
Quoted Content: "Performance fee8: 15% of profit (High-on-high principle) / Nil"
Reason for Use: Directly answers the question about performance fee structure for different share classes in September 2025.

Feishu Answer

Yes, the High Dividend Stocks Fund has performance fees.
The performance fee structure is as follows:
1. Performance Fee Calculation : 15% of profit (High-on-high principle) .
2. High Watermark Condition : Performance fee will only be charged if at the end of the financial year the NAV (before deduction of performance fee and relevant distributions) exceeds the "high watermark," which is the all-time year-end high of the Fund's NAV for the accumulation classes (and dividend adjusted equivalent for distribution paying classes). If in any one year, the Fund suffers a loss, no performance fee can be charged in subsequent years until the loss is recovered fully .
Please note that this information is subject to change, and investors should refer to the latest offering document for detailed fee structures and terms. (From Feishu Knowledge AI <https://ask.feishu.cn>)

RagFlow Answer

Based on the retrieved knowledge from the High Dividend Fund fee structure for September 2025, the performance fees vary by share class:

Performance Fee Structure

For High Dividend Fund (September 2025), the performance fees are as follows :

- Class A1: Not available (data shows "nan")
- Class A2 MDIs: 15% of profit (High-on-high principle)
- Class A Acc: Nil (No performance fee)
- Class B: Not available (data shows "nan")

The "High-on-high principle" means the performance fee is only charged when the fund's value exceeds its previous highest value, ensuring investors only pay performance fees on net gains .

Feishu Answer

The performance fee rate for the High Dividend Stocks Fund is 8 - 15% of profit (High-on-high principle) Nil for most classes, which means the fee is only charged if the Net Asset Value (NAV) before deduction of the performance fee and relevant distributions exceeds the "high watermark" (the all-time year-end high of the Fund's NAV for accumulation classes, or dividend-adjusted equivalent for distribution-paying classes) at the end of the financial year. If the Fund incurs a loss in any year, no performance fee can be charged in subsequent years until the loss is fully recovered.
This fee structure applies to the following classes:
1. Class A1
2. Class A2 MDis
3. Class A Acc
4. Class B

Credit Rating Distribution of Asian Income Fund (September 2025)

Based on the September 2025 report, the Asian Income Fund's fixed income portfolio has the following credit rating distribution :

Investment Grade Holdings

- A: 2.3%

- BBB: 9.8%

- Total Investment Grade: 12.1%

High Yield Holdings

- BB: 9.6%

- B & Below: 5.6%

- Total High Yield: 15.2%

Non-Rated Securities

- Non-rated: 3.6% (including bonds whose issuers do not seek credit ratings)

Portfolio Summary

- Average Credit Rating: BB+

- Total Fixed Income Allocation: The fund maintains a mixed credit quality approach with both investment grade (12.1%) and high yield (15.2%) exposures

Note: The weighted average credit rating is derived by taking the weighted average of the credit rating for each underlying bond in the portfolio, with ratings determined by assigning a sequential integer to all credit ratings from AAA (highest) to D (lowest), taking a simple, asset-weighted average of debt holdings by market value and rounding to the nearest rating. The lowest credit rating assigned by one of the three major external agencies (S&P, Moody's or Fitch) is used, and issuer rating may be used for unrated securities.

RagFlow Answer

Investment Objective of Asian Income Fund

The Asian Income Fund has a dual-focused investment objective:

Primary Objective

The Fund aims to maximize return and income by investing in Asian equities, Asian fixed income securities, and other assets relating to Asian companies that are listed in Asia, or have registered offices in Asia or generate a predominant share of their sales and/or their profits in Asia.

Secondary Objective

The Fund also aims to achieve lower portfolio volatility by actively screening and selecting a combination of lower volatility equities and fixed income securities.

Investment Approach

Investments are selected through:

- Bottom-up research and a screening process
- Preliminary evaluation followed by detailed qualitative and quantitative analysis
- Focus on companies offering potential long-term value
- Consideration of quantitative factors including sustainable business models, robust balance sheets, market capitalization, liquidity, and dividend yield
- Evaluation of qualitative factors such as quality of management and industry analysis

Feishu Answer

The investment objective of the Asian Income Fund is to maximize return and income by investing in Asian equities, Asian fixed income securities, and other assets related to Asian companies that meet specific criteria, while also aiming to achieve lower portfolio volatility. Here are the key points:

1. Investment Scope :

- Equities and Fixed Income : The fund invests primarily in Asian equity and fixed income securities, including convertible bonds. Asian companies are defined as those that are listed in Asia, have registered offices in Asia, or generate a predominant share of their sales and/or profits in Asia.

2. Risk Management and Volatility :

- Lower Volatility : The fund aims to achieve lower portfolio volatility by actively screening and selecting a combination of lower volatility equities and fixed income securities.

3. Return and Income :

- Maximize Return and Income : The primary goal is to maximize both return and income for investors.

Please note that while the fund aims to achieve these objectives, there are no guarantees, and investors should carefully consider the risks involved. For detailed information and risk factors, please refer to the explanatory memorandum. (From Feishu Knowledge AI <https://ask.feishu.cn>)
